

Today we travel with Jesus, firstly as part of the crowd joyfully witnessing God's holy kingdom breaking into Jerusalem's stronghold of earthly power. Then we step out with him on the road to the cross, encouraging one another to hold fast to the way. The words of the Suffering Servant in Isaiah reminds that when we cry out in faith, hope and trust, the Lord hears and responds. With confidence we bring before the living God the needs of the world, our neighbours and ourselves. We pray that during this Holy Week churches around the world will stand together to proclaim boldly the love of the crucified and risen Christ. We pray for all who serve others, especially those whose work is hidden from sight. We pray for any we know who have been brought low by afflictions of body, mind or spirit, asking that they receive healing, help and hope. We name before you today: Kim, Jennifer, Philomena, Nicky, Tessa, Nick, George, Sally, Doreen and Joy. We give thanks for the lives of those who have faithfully witnessed to the Gospel and who have travelled before us on the road to glory. We especially remember today the families and friends of Pat White and Graham Webster.
